ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Satyen Rohit

Satyen Rohit has spent years working across borders, moving between cultures, and observing the quiet ways people carry their lives.

The stories in Buried Things grew from those years— from ordinary moments that quietly reveal extraordinary emotions.

He writes because some things cannot be left unsaid.

Buried Things

Ten Literary Short Stories

Each human is a story untold. Buried Things is ten of them.

A father who braids the mane of a mare the way he once braided his daughter's hair. A therapist who visits a dementia patient every day. A girl searching an abandoned city for food while trying to protect her younger sister.

Quietly devastating.
Deeply human.

FROM THE BOOK

Inside Buried Things

Yesterday he drank it for courage.
Today he drank it for peace.

The pakoras were still warm.

Please don't leave me alone.
I have no one left to make me laugh.

Means somewhere else is burning now.
